

Catholics concerned as state legislature debates death penalty

written by Katie Zakrzewski |

A bill proposing nitrogen gas as a method of execution in Arkansas has passed both the House and Senate and is now awaiting approval from Gov. Sarah Huckabee-Sanders. The bill has sparked controversy among Catholics and medical professionals.